PD

On this same subject I'm trying to remember some of the benefits I had with Intermatic

The main things I remember are

Five million in life insurance policy

One million in health insurance

And a ton of other stuff that I'd need to go back and dig up if I still have it

Don't know if any of this matters but I wanted to get this to you as I remember it

Hi Julia and Ed,

Yesterday we talked about lost wages being high, last night I remembered part of a conversation with Randy Baudin talking to me a bit about wages

He talked about averaging wages over many years to get an average

He also wanted to know what the benefits that went with those wages were worth.

I had a nice benefit package at Intermatic

I told Randy when applying for home loans Intermatic had reported my wages with benefits at 80k per year

They also reported that same number to an attorney I had in the motor vehicle accident back I think somewhere around 2003 (I have to go back and find the exact year that happened)

I think this may be part of the equation he used but I cannot be sure
